Mr. S. L. Smith Gives Lecture on Art Masters

Prominent Teacher and Art Lecturer Shows Many of the World's Best Art Creations in Assembly.

Mr. S. Lincoln Smith of Hollywood, California, gave a lecture on Art Appreciation at a special College assembly period called by the administration of the College at 10:40 o'clock, Monday, July 22, in the College Auditorium. The subject of the lecture was "Old and Modern Masters."

Mr. Smith is on a lecture tour of the United States. He has been to all the State Teachers Colleges of Missouri and goes from Maryville to Fargo, South Dakota to give the lecture which he gave here. Mr. Smith has been a teacher for many years. He has taught for ten years in the Military Tract State Teachers College at McComb, Illinois, as art instructor, twelve years in the Aberdeen, South Dakota, State Teachers College, and was art supervisor for Cook County, Illinois, schools. In all, he has spent thirty-five years in the teaching profession and he said, "I would like to spend thirty-five more years teaching because of the pure enjoyment which I derived from it."

Mr. Smith prefaced his lecture by giving a short talk on the themes used by poets, writers, artists, and musicians. He said, "The theme was the foundation upon which the creator must build and without a great theme the creation could not be a great piece of work." He quoted a few poems to illustrate his point about themes and then proceeded in the main part of his lecture.

The lecturer first showed the picture of the "Last Supper" by Leonardo de Vinci. According to the speaker this picture is recognized by the De Vinci pictures named the "Madonna." This picture is noted for its two perspectives. From one angle the Madonna presents a beautiful smiling face but from a different angle, the Madonna seems to frown.

Mr. Smith next showed his audience a group of pictures which were painted by Hauffman. Two of the most outstanding of these were the pictures of Christ in the Temple and a close-up of Christ taken from Christ in the Temple. In this group were other beautiful biblical pictures such as Christ and the Young Rich Jew and others from the new testament.

Next Mr. Smith showed the picture of Mother Love called "Sistine Madonna" by Raphael. This picture is recognized by art connoisseurs, according to Mr. Smith, as being the finest and greatest picture ever painted by human hand. Another picture of love was the picture of the Madonna called "Madonna of the Chair" by Raphael. The speaker then told of an American painter who had striven to get his work recognized in Europe but had always failed in the attempt. Upon returning from one of these trips of seeking recognition, Whistler decided to paint his mother as she sat in her little old cottage. He painted her as she actually was, with black dress, white hood, and gray hair. Through this picture he made his own mother famous and incidentally forced the recognition of his ability as an artist. Mr. Smith then showed the picture of "Whistler's Mother."

The next group was a collection of girl pictures by Sir Joshua Reynolds. The pictures were all of actual children who represented the innocence of childhood and illustrated the hope of youth which lingered in the eyes of all. Also in this group he presented the pictures of a painter, Gainsborough, who painted nothing but boys.

Some of the other well known artists who were represented in the collection of prints which Mr. Smith said was probably the largest in the world, were John Alexander, Watt, Jones, Innes, Proverost, De Haven, and Vincent. Mr. Smith stated that he was personally acquainted with many of these later American painters and among their paintings which he showed were several beautiful pictures of out-of-door scenes in the valleys of California. Mr. Smith showed his audience one of his own sketches which he is painting for a California high school. The sketch was a scene of lake and was not entirely completed. He only showed the center section.

He had with him several prints which time would not allow him to show in the assembly period, so he displayed them in Social Hall Monday afternoon.

Helen Qualls of Maryville will teach in Cowgill next year.

Letter Is Received from Miss Millikan

A letter from Miss Chloë Millikan, who is traveling in Europe, has been received by Miss Nell Martindale.

Miss Millikan says that she greatly enjoyed her stay in Paris and that she had found nothing nearer heaven than that.

She said that she found it quite expensive there and that if she had stayed much longer she would have had to cable for more money. She is enjoying the sights there, and has seen a little of the night life.

At Cologne she visited the Beethoven Museum and from there sent Mrs. J. W. Hake a picture of Beethoven's piano.

Miss Millikan said that she was anxious to go to Geneva and meet the other people from S. T. C. who will be there.

Mr. C. Myers Is to Be School Inspector

Mr. Charles Myers, B. S., 1924, has been appointed high school inspector of Northwest Missouri by the state superintendent of schools, Charles A. Leo. Mr. Myers has been superintendent of schools at Hamilton for the last few years and was president of the Northwest Missouri Teachers Association in 1927-28. He will receive his M. A. degree from the University of Missouri at the summer commencement exercises.

Mr. Myers is appointed to succeed J. C. Godbey, who has been Northwest Missouri high school inspector for the last four years. Mr. Godbey will continue to work for the state department of education in Jefferson City.

Football Stadium Is to Become a Reality

All indications point to the fact that the Benart football team will be playing on a new gridiron this fall.

The field is located on the acreage directly west of the gymnasium. Last year graders were at work cutting down the banks and filling in the low places. The field has been leveled to a smooth floor-like surface and seeded. Clover and other grasses have grown, making a good sod surface.

The field will be inside an oval on account of the fact that the track will be made on the outside. A cement curb will separate the track from the football field. The curb will be more than 1,800 feet in length and level with the playing surface of the football field. The track will be lower than the curb by 2 inches. Bleachers are to be erected on the west side of the stadium.

The consensus is that the College will soon have a stadium that will be a credit to it and one that will be in keeping with the football teams that have won championships for the school.

ALMA MATER

Let your voices loudly ring,
Echo far and near,
Songs of praise thy children singing
To thy mem'ry dear.

CHORUS:
Alma Mater! Alma Mater!
Tender fair, and true;
Greatest sons, with love unfailing
All their vows renew.

Years may dim our recollection,
Time its change may bring
Still thy name in fond affection,
Evermore we sing.

Margaret and Elizabeth Mills of Grant City will teach in Georgetown, Texas, again next year. They are spending the summer in Europe.

Dramatics Club Presented Two One-act Plays

Assembly Program for July 24 Was Enjoyed by the Entire Student Body in the College Auditorium.

The program which was given in Assembly, Wednesday, July 24, was presented by the College Dramatic Club, assisted by the College orchestra. The Dramatic club presented two plays, "The Rising of the Moon," by Lady Gregory, and "My Lady's Lace" by Knoblock.

"The Rising of the Moon," an Irish play, which was directed by Mrs. Urban, was presented first. This play, produced on the apron of the stage, was quite exceptional, having as the setting, the side of a quay in a seaport town on a moonlight night. The moonlight added to the effect created by the interest in a jail breaker wanting to escape the officers of the law. The theme of the play was that "circumstances alter a man's duty" and it was well carried out. The cast included: Sergeant, Muriel Crawford; Policeman X, Grayson McCrae; Policeman B, Luther Blackwelder; A ragged man, Wilbur Pettigrew.

The second play, which was directed by Betty Seoleman, was "My Lady's Lace," an English play. The scene of the play was laid in the garden of a small Dutch house in 1660. This house belonged to Moeder Kante, a laacemaker. The time of the play was a bright sunny morning and was well in contrast with the previous play. Mynheer had arranged for a marriage of his daughter, Antje, to Jonker Ian, who was a conceited young fellow from Paris. As Antje disliked Jonker Ian, she persuaded her father to conceal himself and listen while she attempted to sell the suitor some lace for the bridal gift. When Jonker discovered the trick after having shown his own insincere intentions, he immediately canceled the plans for the wedding to the satisfaction of the father as well as Antje. The cast for the second play included: Mynheer, Chilton Ross; Antje, Gladys Pulley; Jonker Ian, Paschal Monk; and the old nurse, Helen Tebow.

Both plays revealed good stage technique and the costumes harmonized well with the setting and moods of the plays. Mrs. Urban and Betty Seoleman are members of the play production class which is under the supervision of Miss Criswell. The characters in the play are members of the Dramatic Club and they played their roles in a realistic manner.

The College orchestra, directed by Mr. Hickernell, played the prelude and interlude for the program.

Current Poetry Is Analyzed by Class

The class in the writing of poetry, English 111, taught by Miss Dykes, has been reading the poems in a year's current issue of such magazines as Scribners, Harpers, Atlantic Monthly, Century, and Bookman.

The members of the class are to analyze these poems as to form, content, and figures of speech. They will then present their analysis to the class in the form of a report. It is hoped that the study of these poems will aid them in creative writing.

Lulu Mae Curfman, B. S., 1927, has taught in Saguache, Colorado, the last two years, and will teach in Warrensburg, Colorado, next year.

Tri Sigma Sorority Holds Dinner Party

Townsend Godsey Is Named for New Post

Appointment of W. Townsend Godsey of Maryville, as director of public information for the Missouri Game and Fish department, was made by Doph Simmons, state Game and Fish commissioner, at Jefferson City.

Godsey, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Godsey, already has assumed his duties in charge of the information bureau and as editor of the Missouri Game and Fish News, a monthly magazine issued by the department.

He recently moved from St. Joseph where he was employed on the Gazette, the morning daily paper there. Mr. Godsey and his wife, the former Miss Helen Miller, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Miller, at Hopkins, are well known in this section of the state. Both are members of the Missouri Writers' Guild.

Mr. Godsey gained his first newspaper experience in Maryville when he commenced working for the Daily Tribune, which later was merged with the Democrat-Forum. He first covered high school news and then attended the State Teachers College here. Later he worked on the editorial staff of the St. Joseph News-Press and from there went to Miami, Fla., where he was on the editorial staff of the Daily News and the Tropics Magazine.

He came back to Maryville and worked for the Democrat-Forum and for the Tribune Publishing company.

In September of 1927 he purchased a half interest in the King City Chronicle, a weekly paper at King City, purchasing the interests of L. T. Moulton. With Tracy D. Stahlman, Godsey published the Chronicle until last winter when Godsey sold his interest in the Chronicle to Stahlman and began working in the news department of the Gazette at St. Joseph.—Forum.

College People Visit Catholic Institutions

Over One Hundred and Sixty College Students and Faculty Members of The College Go to Conception.

More than 160 students together with twelve members of the faculty made the trip to Conception, Saturday morning, July 20, to visit the Convent near Clyde, and the monastery at Conception. Miss Olive De Luce and Dean Edith A. Barnard had charge of the trip.

The students were transported by means of private cars, the aid of the Knox taxicab company, Coffey taxicab company, and Hastings bus. The group left the Courthouse square at 7 o'clock and arrived at the Benedictine Convent of Perpetual Adoration at about 8 o'clock where they were divided into groups of approximately forty and shown through the convent and St. Joseph's Academy, the school for the sisters in connection with the convent.

Miss DeLuce took each group separately and made explanations concerning the architecture and art and symbolism, and Sister Mary Dorothy made short talk to one of the groups about the Adoration chapel, and school. She said that many of the sisters were kept busy in making of altar bread to supply other institutions throughout the United States. She also told them about the print shop which they have in connection with the academy which supplies uplifting literature for other churches and institutions throughout the world. She gave a number of the students pictures and literature concerning the institution.

St. Joseph's Academy was first incorporated in 1884 by the Legislature of the state of Missouri, and by its charter, possesses all the rights and privileges of an educational institution, empowered to confer the usual academic degree.

Clyde is about a half mile north of the Academy, on the Wabash, St. Louis and Omaha railways. All local and fast trains stop at Conception, the junction of the Wabash and Chicago Great Western railways, two miles from the Academy. Autos are readily engaged at the station.

The large, south extension of the main building is devoted entirely to school purposes. The eastern portion is reserved exclusively for the Professors of Religious and the Novitiate of the Order. The Adoration Chapel, a handsome edifice of Bedford stone, adjoins the convent buildings on the north. All the buildings are furnished with modern improvements in the line of heat, light and ventilation, and are provided with the most approved sanitary equipments.

Saturday, men were installing new fire doors. Sister Mary Dorothy said that they were working in the kitchen. She remarked, "You know men in the kitchen usually cause some disturbance."

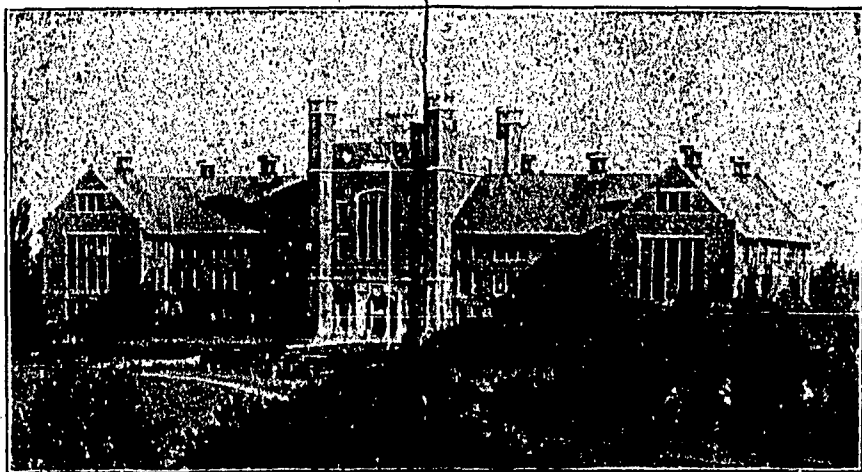

The class rooms, study hall, music rooms, dormitories, recreation and dining halls, the cheerful corridors and broad stairways, are all arranged with a view to health, comfort and convenience. Closely connected with the sleeping apartments are baths plentifully supplied with hot and cold water.

From the convent the students went to the Monastery at Conception. They were shown through the beautiful, large church by Father Patrick Cummins, who explained the architecture and the pictures and the altars to the group. He played some on the pipe organ which is possibly fifty years old. In connection with it, water power is used in sustaining its tones. He explained that the buildings were perfectly proportioned according to the Romanesque style and he said that the pictures were taken from the story of St. Matthew and St. Luke. The pictures are typical of old Egyptian art, rather crude and stiff. He then took the students through the school buildings and showed them the new physical education building which is being completed.

The students and faculty appreciated the kindness and hospitality of those in charge of the institutions and seemed to feel that the trip was very much worthwhile.

Miss Karol Oliphant, a student of the College has been in the hospital for the past week suffering from an infected foot. Her condition is somewhat improved and she will probably return to the College soon.

Byron Beavers of Allendale will teach in Cowgill next year.

Greetings

The officers of the Alumni Association and the administrative officers and faculty of the College take this opportunity to greet the members of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College Alumni Association. May this issue of the Northwest Missourian remind you again of the pleasant memories of associations and work which you have had during your student days at the College. Again may you be reminded that all who have ever been regularly enrolled in the College are members of the Alumni Association.

This opportunity is taken to ask you to tell others of the opportunities offered at S. T. C., and to foster the ideals of service for which she is noted. The officers wish to ask the graduates as well as the undergraduates and those who have ever been regularly enrolled, to note the fine things which the alumni have done in the past, for their Alma Mater. They urge the members of the association to help their Alma Mater to be her best by keeping in touch with her and her activities. They ask the support of the members of the association in helping the alumni secretary to keep a complete, permanent geographical file of the members of the association. They urge the members of the association and others to offer suggestions for the building up of a strong alumni association. They look forward to the time when the association will not only have power and ability to meet its obligations but will rise in activity and power to such an extent that it shall be able to exert a great and helpful influence in behalf of Alma Mater.

IF I WERE TWENTY-ONE

If I were twenty-one I would underwrite good health by a balanced diet, obeying the eighteenth amendment, and taking five miles of oxygen each day on the hoof.

If I were twenty-one I would find my recreation, not in reading about games or in watching them, but in playing them.

If I were twenty-one I would choose some trade or profession in which my imagination would have freedom of action, and learn to like work for its own sake.

If I were twenty-one I would preserve the health of my mind by feeding it less newspaper and more history, biography, and Bible.

If I were twenty-one I would strive each day to do something myself for some less fortunate individual, rather than pay someone else to do it.

If I were twenty-one I would be more interested in being a friend than in having friends, and would take time to keep the fences of friendship in repair.

If I were twenty-one I would spend some time each day in the garden of humor, smiling at the flowers and pulling out the weeds.

If I were twenty-one I would practice the virtue of patriotism in times of peace as well as in days of war.

If I were twenty-one I would plan to get married, hope for a family, and definitely plan to make home life sweeter, happier, and more contented than it has been in other generations.

If I were twenty-one I would begin each day by thinking of something beautiful, remembering that in life as in a mirror you never get more out than you put in.

If I were twenty-one I would live the Golden Rule, and stick to it in spite of all adverse experiences.

If I were twenty-one I would build my life on the conviction that I am not a mortal body which has a spirit, but an immortal spirit which has a body, and I would take time each day to commune with God.—Samuel Macanuly Lindsay.

PERTINENT SAYINGS

It is just as easy to form a good habit as it is a bad one, and it is just as hard to break a good habit as it is a bad one. So get a good habit and keep it.—William McKinley.

Education used to be for the purpose of enabling a man to manage others. Now we believe it is for the purpose of making a man able to manage himself.—Elbert Hubbard.

The man who never makes a mistake is the man who never does anything.—Theodore Roosevelt.

ORIGIN OF WORDS

It is not considered complimentary to say of a woman that she is "no lady," but how many women are entitled to the name in its real sense? I do not know one, for the true meaning of "lady" is a loaf-kneader—a noble art that is practically defunct today.

There are about 2,000,000 spinsters in Great Britain, but how many of them can spin? And although every man is Mr. So-and-so, very few are entitled to the Mr. in its true meaning of master.

My grocer is certainly not an engrosser, though he retains the old name in its abbreviated form; my chemist knows little or nothing of alchemy, from which his predecessors got the name alchemist.

Costers no longer sell costard apples; most sailors have never been on a ship with sails, and the humble "navy" has long since ceased to make navigation canals. The constable is not the court of the stable; the publican is not the tax collector; and the gaffer of a mill often behaves in a way very unlike his name, which is shortened form of godfather.

Of the thousands of clerks working today not one is a clergyman or cleric; the old name has come down from the time when the only people who could write were the clerics.—The Exponent.

Registration Day

It is registration day and Susan is going through the first stage which is mental upheaval. Everywhere is the strife of battle and hopeless but hot arguments rise from all sides. No one seems to know what he wants, or is it that it does one no good to know what he wants. Here we go.

"You can't take that; it's 101 and you're a sophomore—can't take anything over 100½—see Professor Hazy about it. 'He told me to see you.' 'You have a conflict? It's your own fault. We can't do anything.' 'You won't get your degree here? Well, we'll fix that up—see about it right away.'"

In another corner an advisor is giving a Freshman a suspicious look. "Are these all requirements?" "Freshman who is taking 3 electives?" "Yep." "One finds a few martyrs to culture: 'You don't get any credit for that.' 'Yes, but I need it and I signed up for it, but I never told any of the faculty because they might not have let me take it.' And so the comedy goes on.

Susan is wondering what its all about. She isn't supposed to think about such things, however, because there is always the mass of rules to go by. She hopes to major in English, but the program looks otherwise. Here is history of the English language. She wanted short story, but one can't take the courses out of their turn. The Lord only knows why. Maybe one isn't supposed to be able to write unless one knows where written articles came from. Anyway it was 101, so she couldn't work them into letting her take it. She couldn't decide on anything else. There didn't seem to be any outlet, and in despair she sought the kindly advisor. He spread the program on the table and the battle began.

"Now here's poultry raising, or animal breeding at 9:00 o'clock. How about that? Susan giggled. She was not interested in raising chickens or cows, in fact she would never marry a farmer. Finally she decided on Vegetable Gardening, a great unexplored field for learning. She sees two English Literature courses, but no, you can't take 2 English courses in the same quarter. It's one of the rules too that lets that out. She wonders why. Philosophy? Yes, that's about all there is. She isn't interested but it counts. Here's biology but that doesn't count on a degree so there's no use taking it if it doesn't count.

Having traveled about the building for one hundred miles or more, Susan has her course arranged as follows:

Vegetable Gardening 99½.

History of the Vernacular 25½.

Social, Autoerotic and Physical Methods 26 (also mental).

Philosophy of the Bible.

After all, Susan decides, after a morning's struggle. It isn't what you want, but what you can get. Pity 'tis true.—O. W.

CLOSE HARMONY

Stop us if you've heard these latest bits of Scotch:

The most disappointed Scotchman was the one who figured on living with his wife's folks only to find out after marriage that his wife's folks were still living with theirs.

Then there was the Scotchman who, rather than pay money to travel, was content to sit at home and let his mind wander.

Have you heard of the Scotchman who took his own tablecloth to a night club to avoid the cover charge?

Not to mention the Scotch lady who shot her husband and was indignant because the doctor wouldn't give her her bullet back.

Sandy kept his promise to contribute a large check to the flood sufferers by sending his worn out kilts.

A scientist reports that the banks of the famous "River of Ink" are lined with Highlanders filling their fountain pens.

Then there was the Scotch sheik who gave his sweetie mothballs to put in her hope chest.

And the Scotchman who, when he saw a riot, took off his coat and joined in. It was free-for-all.

Not forgetting the Scotchman who tried to get honey out of his radio B battery.

Dreams of the Sea

Stately ships on the ocean plow,
Foamy fringe in the flick blue deep,
Creamy skies at the end of the world
These are my dreams of the sea.

Birds like butterflies gliding by
Smaller boats with their puffed sails,
Winds that ruffle the sailors hair
Are in my dreams of the sea.

An anchor thrown in a foreign port,
Then a cargo of spices and silks,
A journey home toward a mellow sun,
These are my dreams of the sea.

Small son: Where's God?
Mother: He's everywhere.
S. S.: Is he in the sugar bowl?
Mother: Yes.
S. S.: (slamming the top on the bowl) Well, I got him then.

English Teacher: What would you say to a young lady if you were introduced to her at an evening affair?
Student: Kin I take you home?

Rumors are afloat that the dancing class will give a recital before the end of the summer quarter.

A farewell dinner was given at the Puritan Cafe, Friday evening, July 12, in honor of Miss Gladys Criswell, instructor of public speaking in the College. The dinner was given by the 1929 debate team and followed by a bridge party at the home of Cleola Dawson.

Miss Criswell has been teaching public speaking, directing dramatics, and coaching the debate teams of the College during the last two years. She received her B. S. degree from the College in 1924 and has since received her M. A. degree from the Northwestern University.

Two informal, impromptu queries were debated at the party and Miss Criswell's influence upon the College debaters was readily observed, especially when Carl Massie presented his argument for his question. One debate was "Resolved, It is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved." Affirmative speakers were Margaret Conner and Wiley Poleson, and the negative speakers were Miss Dow and Mr. LaMar. The other question debated was: Resolved, It is better to be a big frog in a little puddle, than to be a little frog in a big puddle." The affirmative speakers for this question were Miss Criswell and Luther Blackwelder. The negative speakers were Martha Herdridge and Carl Massie.

The dinner guests were Martha Her-ridge, Cleola Dawson, Carl Massie, and Wiley Poleson. Other guests at the party were Miss Blanche Dow, Mr. Stephen LaMar, Margaret Conner, and Luther Blackwelder.

Mrs. Leo Cox, formerly Miss Mary Mansfield, is spending the week with her husband who is in school this summer. Mr. Cox will teach in Clearmont, next year.

The Stroller

By I. I. I.

Last week the Stroller had almost decided to quit. Hot weather was holding away, there was nothing to tell about except that the students were slipping along to the classes and trying to dodge old man sunshine. Hot weather or something seems to be affecting even the faculty. Prove it! It is easy, ask anyone in Miss Dykes 10:40 English class. Miss Dykes decided to call upon Rebecca Boyd to recite and politely said, "Miss Ross." Perhaps we shouldn't blame the heat for the near catastrophe, for Miss Dykes may have some advanced information.

Truman Scott is supposed to be an authority on women but Orville Hedges had him stumped the other day when he asked "Scotty" if he understood women. "Scotty" replied, "Sure I understand women." So Hedges asked him, "what do they mean when they hold out their hand in the car ahead?" That held him for awhile.

Several of our boys went to Fort Riley, Kansas, with the "Army" for the last two weeks. The Stroller heard about a conversation between "Runt" Russell and a lieutenant, which ran like this:

"Runt": "Shall I mark time with my feet sir?"

Lieutenant: (sarcastically) "My dear fellow, did you ever hear of marking time with your hands?"

"Runt": "Yes sir. Clocks do it." The Stroller doesn't know whether a court-martial resulted or not.

Mr. H. Garrett got excited in one of his classes the other day, so the Stroller has it, while discussing political parties, as to who supported them, etc. Suddenly he drawled "Well I haven't any supporters." While the members of the class laughed, still they felt a bit sorry for him, since he didn't have any. They also feel sorry for Mr. Melius. Someone said that he doesn't have any, either.

The last word is to the effect that all animals that walk on the public highway from now on at night must wear head lights. Now the Stroller just wonders if a cow will wait for a lightning bug to ask to see her home.

It is very seldom that the Stroller by making the rounds on the campus can get the goods on one of the old grads, especially one of the confirmed old bachelors, just for example like Eldon Stoiger. But when Eldon will deliberately march into the Administration building and make away with one of the pretty girl students of the College who is supposed to be studying in the library on a certain Monday evening and wave goodbye to the Stroller and other students, it makes him wonder if this hard hearted old bachelor's heart isn't softening just a wee bit?

The Stroller accidentally happened along the corridor on second floor recently and saw Grayson McCrea cautiously carrying an unlighted lantern. Just then along came Mr. Colbert who said "Well, Diogenes do you think you will find that honest man?" Mr. Rick-enbrode standing near stepped up and suggested that a more fruitful undertaking might be to go to St. Louis and try to get that airplane stopped.

The Stroller doesn't always get things right but he understands that the chickens are having picnic dinners in the College or else that the dinners in the park are of chicken mostly better ask some of the Davies county people. Any way the men and women of the College are having dinners for themselves but it seems that they are generally held separately. Some one said it was safer that way.

Alumni News

The officers of the Alumni Association are:

For the last two years he has been superintendent of schools at Perry. Mr. and Mrs. Leech have two children, Robert Ray "Bobby" Leech and Nancy Jane.

Ralph "Pig Iron" McClintock, who was in school at the College in 1919, is in the grain business in San Antonio, Texas. Mr. Hubert Garrett of the College said recently, that when he was in the army during the world war, Mr. McClintock lighted one day in his airplane close to the street of the company to which Mr. Garrett belonged. Mr. Garrett said that he told the captain that Mr. McClintock was his half brother, and asked to be allowed to visit with him. The captain said, "Sure go ahead you may have all day and all night if you wish it."

Mr. Garrett and Mr. McClintock and Mrs. McClintock who will be remembered as Miss Nancy Gustin, were all students at the College at the same time.

Plans for Association

An alumni dinner and program will be held during the district teachers meeting at the College in October:

To build up the mailing list of the former students and graduates of the College.

To obtain 100 per cent paid dues to the association. (The dues are $1.00 which pays for the Northwest Missourian and for the service of the placement bureau of the College and are supposed to pay for printing and other expenses in connection with programs, banquets, gifts and other undertakings of the association. Much of the expense of the alumni association is borne by the College, such as some of the expense of the alumni secretary, and record material, and mailing expenses. The organization as is, is dependent upon the College, rather than an organization having the power to help and influence the activities of the College.)

To record clippings and other data obtainable concerning former students and graduates of the College with the permanent record blank of each student.

What Other Alumni Associations Are Doing

The Missouri Valley College at Marshall adopted some important resolutions at the annual alumni meeting this year. These resolutions will affect deeply all alumni and former students. They are as follows:

1. That Missouri Valley College Alumni Association exist as a separate and distinct organization from that of the College and function independently but always in coordination with the College administration.

2. That of the officers, the secretary and news-editor be resident members; that vice-presidents be elected from each of the active alumni clubs in Kansas City, Chicago, St. Louis, Marshall, and Pike County, Mo.

3. That arrangements be made with "The Delta" whereby an alumni column can be published in each issue and that The Delta be sent to each "subscribing" alumni member.

4. That each alumnus subscribe one dollar per month toward the founding of an Alumni Endowment Fund, and that former students may become associate members of the Association upon payment of this subscription; they will receive "The Delta." Associate membership carries membership in the alumni clubs.

5. That a committee be appointed to draft resolutions in the form of amendments to our By-Laws and report at the next meeting of the Association.

6. That a committee be appointed to make suitable arrangements with The Delta staff.

The arrangements committee for the alumni banquet which was held at Residence Hall on Tuesday, May 28, 1920, was Mrs. J. A. Anderson, Mrs. Ralph Marcell, and Mrs. Clarence Vogt.

Those who planned the banquet program were: Miss Blanche Dow, Mr. Leslie Somerville, and Mr. Stephen LaMar.

The program was as follows: Pep Songs, led by Stephen LaMar, William Holdridge at the piano.

The meeting of the Writers' Club has been postponed until Tuesday, July 30.
